STIRLING CASTLE

Perched dramatically on a great rock, Stirling Castle has dominated much of Scotland's vivid history.

Following breakfast, depart for a VIP private visit to Stirling Castle.

In olden days, it was said that all routes led to Stirling - because of its strategic position, whoever held Stirling Castle controlled the Scottish nation.

With historic links to Robert the Bruce, William Wallace and Mary, Queen of Scots, it is one of Scotland's most important historical sites.

GLENTURRET DISTILLERY

Glenturret Distillery is one of Scotland's oldest distilleries, and has been producing Scotch malt whisky since 1775.

Enjoy a private tour of the distillery, the perfect introduction to the Scotch whisky making process. See where the milling, mashing, fermenting and distilling takes place before trying a dram of single malt.

Guests have special permission from HMRC to be taken into the bonded warehouses to view the casks of malt maturing quietly over the course of years, sometimes decades, before they are ready to be bottled.

BROOMHALL HOUSE

Historical and current home to the family of Bruce, a name linked to valour and legend throughout Scottish history.

Departing Gleneagles, we head to a very special property: Broomhall House.

Not open to the public, guests will enjoy a tour by Lord Bruce himself, with special access to the privately curated museum presenting an annual cycle of exhibitions featuring photography; prints, plans and drawings; letters and journals; state papers; arms and armour; ceramics and textiles, all documenting the family life and the widespread travels of the Bruce family.

As Lord Bruce also holds the title of the 8th Earl of Elgin, hear fascinating stories of how the infamous Elgin Marbles were acquired and view casts of the original Parthenon sculptures.

There can be no more intimate peek into one of Scotland's most important families, and no better way to experience a private art collection than through the eyes of the family that collected it.

Enjoy an intimate lunch, hosted by Lord Bruce before continuing to Edinburgh.
